

Your Werewolf, Your Baby, and Your Silver Bullet

- Get into pairs (group of three ok)
- Discuss the following questions within your pair/group
- You will have ~8 minutes/question
- After all the questions, you'll share what you discussed with the class
- You can answer for your own research or the article you brought in, either way is totally fine!

Pair & Share

Tell us about your cute baby. Why is it cute and worth saving?

Next, think about the werewolf?
What is it? Why is it scary? What makes it a challenging beast to fight?

Finally, what's your silver bullet?
How will you defeat your scary
werewolf and save your cute baby?

- Share your own babies, werewolves, and silver bullets with the class
- Was this a challenging exercise for you? If so, what made it challenging? If not, why do you think it was easy?
- Would you consider applying this structure to a talk or a paper? Why or why not?

Pair & Share

Raise your hand if you found it easier to pinpoint the baby after you'd thought about the werewolf.

Show vs. Tell

Why does this particular structure work? What's appealing about it?

- Who knows about OPD's 3MT?
 - Well, in two weeks you're going to give a similar presentation and receive feedback
 - We're passed the signup period for this year's competition, but maybe you'll have the opportunity to use these next year
- The Assignment:
 - Create 1 slide
 - No animations, transitions, or movements allowed
 - Practice your three minute "story"
 - Timing will be strictly enforced!
